MIT TAKES 2007 TUFTS VOLLEYBALL INVITATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

MEDFORD – MIT was crowned champion of the 2007 Tufts Volleyball Invitational on Saturday. Both the Engineers and Wellesley College finished the two-day tournament with 4-0 records, but MIT was awarded the title based on their 12-1 record in games played. Wellesley had a 12-5 mark in games played. The teams did not face each other during the weekend.

Elizabethtown, visiting from Pennsylvania, took third place at the tournament with a 2-2 mark. Host Tufts finished fourth, edging Brockport State by virtue of six games won to five by Brockport. The Jumbos also had a 3-0 head-to-head win over the Golden Eagles.

An All-Tournament team will be announced once the votes from the coaches are tallied.
